“Cool Body by Revival”

Cryolipolysis [“Cryo” relates to freezing; “lipolysis” is the breakdown of fats] has recently been developed for sculpting the body, especially those hard to move parts such as baby tummy, love handles and thighs.

It has been accepted by the US FDA as a safe therapy.

On the left are some results.

The basis of Cryolipolysis is that fat cells die at a higher temperature than the rest of the body. Gentle suction is applied to the treatment areas and during the thirty to fifty minute treatment the target area is cooled down to near freezing. This is not enough to cause frostbite or damage tissue such as muscle, skin or nerves. It is enough to bring about the death of fat cells in that area.

It takes four to eight weeks for the fat cells to be broken down and expelled from the area so it is not an immediately observable result.

You will see from the examples a number of treatments for each area may be required, depending on the desired results.

Some clinics are charging between $800 and $1500 for one session using the same technology. Our regular fee is only $350 per treatment.
